Trading Update Announcement - 21 July 2004

Update on current trading at AGM

Invensys plc, the global automation, controls and process solutions Group, today gave an update on current trading at its Annual General Meeting.

Addressing the shareholders at the Meeting, Chairman Martin Jay said:

"In our Preliminary Results in May, we stated that our key markets were showing encouraging signs and that, in addition, customer confidence was returning following the Group's successful refinancing. This remains the case, particularly in certain key sectors for Process Systems.

"We did, however, point out that our view on the macro-economic outlook remained conservative. As of today, market conditions in Europe are mixed, but much of Asia is exhibiting strong demand and the North American recovery continues.

"As we explained in May, there are a number of initiatives underway in our businesses - particularly Process Systems, Climate Controls and APV - which will detract from profitability during the first half. In APV, management action has been extended to a programme similar to that implemented in Process Systems, in order to address issues which are impacting performance. However, we are encouraged by the progress made thus far by most of our businesses toward delivering an improving year-on-year trend in the second half.

"Since May, we have further reduced the levels of our net debt and other legacy liabilities.

"As stated at the time, the greater stability afforded by our refinancing is enabling us to take those actions necessary to drive growth, profitability and cash generation from our retained businesses over the long term."
